2 My suggestion would be to wear a bandana over your face, or a larger than normal covid-sort-of mask.
▼ Wear that, with large pair of shades to disguise your identity.

2 I see they mentioned ski masks above, but my post still stands.

1 I checked the post this time...I was going to say "gas mask", but I see it's already on your list.
▼ I've done this before (bought gas mask for a protest) at a huge riot when we went to war with Iraq and I was in SF at a spontaneous uprising. The only thing you might could add, would be where to get these items. For instance, I was able to walk into a local army surplus store and buy the gas mask. Better to bring it to DC, but if all else fails, hit the local Army Surplus stores.

5 Bathrooms are going to be a problem with restaurants and hotels being closed. Guys can find a tree to water
▼ but ladies may have a problem finding facilities.

Great suggestions! Plate carriers if you've got them for sure, helmets are a must with bike lock bastards running around, not sure about what methods of self defense we're allowed to carry due to D.C. being a shithole in terms of rights. Fuck big government. Stay safe out there, lads!

We're bringing Mace, fixed blades, batons, tasers, and a few sets of hand cuffs. We're also bringing multiple power banks that can last up to 72 hours with 5 laptops. Our journey is about 48 hours each way.

Didn't even think of zip ties! great Idea!

Sportsman Warehouse has some good camping power banks that can be charged by solar, they have ones that range from $200-$3200 that vary in strength. I think the $200 one can fully charge a phone about 15 times over with one full charge, or a laptop twice over. The big one they have can last a whole group for a few weeks on a single charge.

Sportsman's Warehouse - NASDAQ: SPWH - American Company, based in Utah
Goal Zero - Subsidiary of Company Below - American Company, based in Utah
NRG Energy - NYSE: NRG - American Company, based in New Jersey and Texas

---- ONLY DOWNSIDE ----

Goal Zero manufactures their products in China

"Our products are designed, engineered and tested here in our Salt Lake City, Utah headquarters and manufactured with our partners in China" - Goal Zero

If anyone can find an alternative that is an American company that is 100% made from materials sourced in the USA and Made in USA supporting American jobs, let me know so I can recommend a different option. I haven't been able to find anything yet that doesn't make their power banks in China.

▼ I have two handheld ham radios. I don't have a clue how to use them. Somebody who knows how they work please write up an idiot's guide. If I can monitor relevant frequencies it would be useful.
